Once set up, the app works as youeÁÁÁd expect, and it even fully supports native notifications which I love. Check out 9to5Google on YouTube for more news: FTC: We use income earning auto affiliate links. The app is available for free on Windows, Mac, and Linux. It supports system notifications, though, at least at the moment, they aren't actionable. PushBullet allows you to connect your Android device and your PC and there are many other options to connect your PC and Android phone. Thankfully, a third-party developer has managed to build an unofficial desktop client for all major platforms. I also recommend Textto which is extremely similar to Android Messages but has been out for longer. Messages makes it easy to ask the Google Assistant for helpful information, right from your conversation. More.Check out 9to5Google on YouTube for more news: Use your OS's built-in notification system to make sure you never miss a message. Up late? See Android Messages in Google Play Use the web Android Messages has a web client. Always helpful, Messages allows you to get more done. If youeÁÁAre eager to use Android Messages from your computer but doneÁÁÁt want to constantly deal with tab hunting, this is a great option.Á Especially now that everyone has access to the functionality. How do you message your friends, family, and co-workers? Even though services like WhatsApp, Facebook, and Telegram are popular, SMS messaging still holds the crown of the most popular type of messaging in many areas, including the US. Like finding and sharing things easily, responding with just a tap, or even sending a payment* eÁÁÁ right from a chat. Having access to your messages from the desktop is great, but locking it to a tab can be a bit annoying. annoying.
